Overall Irish Whiskey of the Year & Best Irish Single Malt (13 Years Old and Over)

Teeling the Revival Single Malt Volume IV

70cl/ 46%

A very close category this year but it was Teeling's New Revival IV that triumphed! With the continual growth and renaissance of Irish whiskey, it seemed fitting that Teeling's Revival should win. An outstanding winner nonetheless! The ex-Muscat barrels used to finish this Revival have added some citrus and floral notes, as well as a ripe fruits and spice towards the finish.

Túath Glass

The Perfect Christmas Gift for the Whiskey Enthusiast

Túath is the old Irish for people, tribe or nation as in Tuatha Dé Danann ("People of the goddess Danu", a supernatural race in Irish mythology). The Túath glass was created specifically for the enjoyment of Irish whiskey, a lot of thought, care and time has gone in to creating the Túath glass.

€9⁹⁵

Appearance

The Túath glass is larger, taller and has a wider opening than the norm. This offers the advantage of the whiskey having a greater area to swirl around in which give the aromas a better chance of being released. The slightly bigger opening also facilitates easier nosing.

Feel

This is where the Túath really comes into its own. The base is specially designed to be held between the thumb, forefinger and middle finger with the first two digits on the top and the middle finger resting under the base. As soon you pick it up, it feels very natural. The best thing about this design is that the glass feels very secure and it encourages the user to swirl the glass and release aromas. The pyramid-like angles of the stem where inspired by the island of Skellig Michael.

Nosing

This glass is a pure joy to nose whiskey with. The flared rim tends to help soften the hot alcohol notes. This combined with the taller glass bowl reduces the chances of any burning sensations but really brings out fruit and ester aromas.

Tasting

The most important part! This is where the flared rim reveals its other advantage by delivering the liquid straight onto the centre of the tongue. This means that you get the full taste of the whiskey and it is distributed evenly to all the areas of the tongue. A surprising bonus to this was that unlike other tasting glasses there is no need to tip your head back for a sip.

'The dark, almost black color and the wonderful violet aromas set the scene for this complex, dense and textured wine. It has a touch of spice, along with the rich plum and dark berry fruits. 2013 / €60.99

Declared as a vintage year but with only a tiny parcel of wine released. Just 1200 cases were made in what proved to be a tricky vintage for most other winemakers. 2014 / €68.99

This is a really fantastic young vintage Port showing terrific clarity and power. Full body and a tight center palate of blueberry and plum character. So long and persistent in the mouth. Goes on for minutes. Try in 2023 and beyond. Not a generally declared year for Port, but this is a stunner.

2015 / €72.50

It's early days for this wine, a vintage that was only declared by Noval in May 2017. Therefore, any tasting notes would be unreliable. What we know about the 2015 vintage is that it looks to have the balance of great years like 1997 and 1985. James Suckling describes Noval and the others he has tried thus, 'They have wonderful center palates and structure'

This complex wine has flavours of roasted nuts, dried citrus peel, figs, date sand caramel with some refreshing acidity and a rich, mouth-filling quality. The perfect after dinner treat.
